Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-10 and 12-15, 18 and 19 have been considered but are moot.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3-10 and 12-15, 18 and 19 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent 5,147,087 to Fuchs

Regarding claims 1 and 24, Fuchs discloses (see Figure 2) a dosing device having a housing, the housing being identified by the Examiner as (items (1) and (8)), metering tube, (combined device, (9)), having a piston ((10), (11)) having an access opening (39) from the interior, the housing having a chamber (15) to hold medicament, where the metering tube extends to as dispensing position and the access opening is in communication with the chamber when the metering tube is filling, the opening being displaced outside of the housing.

As per claim 3, the stroke of the piston is fixed.

As per claim 4, a member (7) limits the displacement of the piston in one direction.

As per claim 5, a piston (11) is within the metering tube.

As per claim 6, the piston (11) is moveable with the metering tube (9).

As per claim 7, a stop (7) limits the displacement of the metering tube.

As per claims 8 and 9, Fuchs teaches a handheld apparatus for dispensing medicament as an atomized mist.

As per claim 10, which includes most of the apparatus features of claim 1 as discussed above, includes the housing, metering tube and medicament chamber, where and opening (39) is displaced outside of the housing when dispensing, and where the metering tube is retracted within the chamber, the opening is in communication with the chamber.

As per claims 12, 20, 22 and 25, the piston and metering tube can move together or the piston can move independently of the metering tube, depending on which stage of dispensing is occurring, thus the piston "adjusts" relative to the metering tube, the result being the piston moving in a direction relative to the metering tube.

As per claim 13 and 15 by all accounts; in a handheld inhaler, the piston (11) retracts the metering tube with itself for a filling position, thus drawing medicament from the chamber, and then extends the tube (9) to a dispensing position and before expelling the medicament as a mist as cited above.

As per claim 14, the metering tube retracts before medicament is atomized.

As per claims 18, and 19, the opening (39) serves to both draw, and expel medicament.

As per claim 26, the apparatus of Fuchs is fully capable of performing the claimed task of retracting a metering tube (9) to a filling position drawing medicament into the metering tube from a chamber (15) extending the metering tube to a dispensing position, and expelling medicament from the metering tube, wherein the device has a piston ((10), (11)), and where movement of the piston in a first direction draws medicament into the metering tube in accordance with, and movement of the piston in a second direction expels medicament from the metering tube in accordance with step and where movement of the piston in the first direction results in movement of the piston relative to said metering tube.

Conclusion

2. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
